CONGRESS HAS SUSPICIONS ON MAIL CAMPAIGN

Probe Seen as Thousands of Letters Urge Suspension of 40-Hour Week.

PROPAGANDA HINTED

Pledges To Vote Against Foes
of Law Change Arrive on Postcards, Coupons.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—Possibility of a congressional probe arose today as thousands of letters urging suspension of the 40-hour week and overtime pay for duration of the war continued to flood congress despite opposition to such legislation by President Roosevelt and other high administration officials.

Belief was held that an increasing stream of signed pledges threatening to vote against members of congress who do not support legislation "carrying out the moves, indicate an organized propaganda campaign.

The pledges are pouring in on printed postcards, coupons from newspapers, small printed slips and larger types of "throw-aways" such as are used in advertising campaigns.

A letter to one western senator enclosing a large number of the pledges said that they had been placed on the counter of the writer's dry goods store and customers were asked to sign them.

The pledge, entitled "My pledge to help win the war," reads: "I solemnly pledge I will refuse to vote for the re-election of any U. S. senator or any U. S. congressman who does not consistently vote for a law outlawing all strikes in every industry connected with defense and who does not vote to abolish the limitations of the 40-hour week labor and pay of time and a half and double for overtime in defense industries for the duration of the war."

Hundreds of form letters to Taft asked: "What about our boys at the front? Are they asking more for working overtime?"

While the majority of the correspondence is against the 40-hour week and overtime pay, there have been some letters and telegrams from workers and labor unions taking an opposite view.

Knox Calls It Second Worst
Protected Port.

NORFOLK, Va. —(INS)—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox today completed his inspection tour of east coast naval establishments with a warning to officials of Norfolk to increase their fire and police protection of the harbor.

"The protection afforded by Norfolk is the second worst I found," Knox said. "It is paramount that the harbor have at least one fire boat and one police boat and it is up to local officials to supply them."

Knox declined to name the "worst" port in this respect. He reiterated that the navy is supplying American shipping on the Atlantic with increasing protection and said that each week finds the sea lanes made safer.

Army Seeks Law to Let It Use 11,800,000 Men Between 54 and 65 Who Will Register April 27 Under FDR Order

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—Military authorities and war production officials, it was learned today, will ask congress for sweeping revision of the national draft act in order to make use of the reservoir of 11,800,000 men between the ages of 45 and 64, inclusive, who must register April 27 under a proclamation signed by President Roosevelt.

Under the present law, it was pointed out, there is no authority to make use of the men, even for work in war industries.

"It is like having a wagon without a horse," said an army official.

"Or, like having an automobile without tires," remarked a war production spokesman.

Under the draft act, all men from 18 to 64, inclusive, are liable to registration. Men from 20 to 44, inclusive, are liable for military service. But other than carrying out the registration of the 18 and 19 year olds and men from 45 to 64, the army is powerless at this time to order them into the service or into factories.

Men from 20 to 44, some 26,000,000 of them liable to military service, already have been registered. After the 45 to 64 group is signed up, the 18 and 19 year olds will remain as the only group not yet registered. About 1,200,000 in number, they are expected to be registered about April 29 or 30.

No plans are being made for a lottery for the older men, many of them grandfathers. Instead plans are being drawn to ask congress for legislation to use the men in war industries or any other civilian post deemed necessary by the army or war production officials. Such men will be hand-picked and there will be no necessity for a lottery, it was explained.

DEADLINE TAX RUSH EASES OFF

Payments Drop to Trickle on Last Day But Total Will Reach $650,000.

The anticipated last-day rush to pay taxes at the county treasurer's office failed to materialize today as the stream of property owners who have filed past the windows for the past two weeks dwindled to a mere trickle.

Payments began to drop off yesterday when receipts amounted to $17,816, Treasurer Charles P. Payne said. Collections reached a peak of more than $86,000 Wednesday.

Although the tax books will close today so far as payments across the counter are concerned, a huge number of checks received by mail probably will not be totaled for several days, the treasurer said. Each mail delivery now brings scores of checks from taxpayers.

Payne predicted that total collections for the first-half period will exceed $650,000 although they were $75,000 short of that mark today.

Receipts during the first half of the year usually exceed last-half payments since a number of property owners pay their entire year's tax bill as soon as the first collection starts. Any collection of more than $650,000 during the first-half period would be considered satisfactory, the treasurer said.

On Page 2 of today's News-Journal, appears Chapter 1 in this dramatic novel that will be one of the most talked-about newspaper serials of recent years.

The story begins to unfold with Parris Mitchell, the sensitive lad who is its central figure, as a youngster in school. He'll captivate you, as will many of the other characters in Henry Bellamann's novel. Others will startle you, and some will leave you bewildered.

But all of them together combine to give you the best reading you'll have for a long time. So turn to Page 2 for the first chapter, and don't miss any of the other 35 installments to follow daily in the pages of The News-Journal.

Warm Sun Heralds Spring's Debut Tomorrow at 2:11 A. M.

You probably won't notice the difference after today's pleasant sunshine and mild temperatures, but spring will arrive at exactly 2:11 a. m. tomorrow.

At that minute will occur the Vernal Equinox, when day and night are equal the world over. That is one of the two times in the year (the other is in September) when the earth's axis is at right angles to the direction of the sun.

The weather forecast on the eve of spring's arrival is for rising temperatures today. Showers are predicted tonight for the west portion of the state, and may skip Mansfield. The temperature at noon was 42.

Mansfielder Learns Father Starved to Death In Greece

Unable to help their 65-year-old father whom they had not heard from for more than a year, Peter Nickas, Mansfield restaurant proprietor, and his two brothers who operate a restaurant in Findlay, learned today that the elderly man had starved to death at his home on the island of Chios, off the coast of Nazi-dominated Greece.

Word came first to Jimmy and Nick Nickas, the Findlay brothers, who told their story to news services. The third brother in Mansfield knew nothing of his father's death until a News-Journal reporter called his home. Mrs. Nickas told him of the report.

The Nickas brothers in Findlay said they received a letter from a neighbor of their father after the neighbor joined the British forces in Africa. The death message was reported smuggled by a Turkish fisherman from Greece to the Greek soldier in Africa and then sent on to America.

Mrs. Peter Nickas told The News-Journal her husband had written to his father several times, but all the letters had been returned for more than a year.

"We didn't know what had happened to him and there was nothing we could do about it," she said. "It makes blood in my eye."

said Jimmy Nickas, one of the brothers in Findlay, "when I think father had three big sons in America, all owning restaurants. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4)

Under the new schedule, early buses will leave Audale avenue and West Park drive and Park avenue west and Linden road at 5:30 a. m. They will arrive at Fourth and Main streets at 5:40 a. m., making it possible for workers to transfer and reach industrial plants by 6 a. m.

Beginning Monday, the two west side routes, formerly connected by a "loop," will be divided. Park avenue buses will follow their present route to (Continued on Page 3, Col. 5)

Loudonville Youth Missing In Action, Navy Tells Family

LOUDONVILLE — Irvin Peters, 21-year-old son of Mrs. Ruth Peters, of east of here, a seaman in the U. S. navy, was reported missing in action today by navy officials.

The terse message was received here last night by the youth's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Hoffman. They notified the boy's mother. The message did not say where young Peters was on duty.

A former member of the Ohio National guard at Ashland, Peters enlisted in the navy in December 1940.

His mother last heard from him a week ago. She received a letter dated Dec. 14 in which he said he was well but couldn't say where he was. He wrote, however, that he "was a long way from Ohio," indicating that he may have been in the Far East area.

Two Army Planes Crash In West,
Three Others Missing.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal. — (INS)—Two army training planes crashed in the Tehachapi mountains, killing their pilots, and three other planes are missing on a routine cross-country flight, Minter Field army authorities announced today.

The victims were identified as aviation cadets Donald Crane, 20, of San Francisco, and Paul A. Davis, 23, of Denver.

GAS RATIONING SET-UP WOULD 'GROUND' CARS

Plan To Revoke Ration Cards
For Traffic Violations
Being Considered.

Motorists in some parts of the country may be "grounded" under the gasoline rationing program for violation of traffic laws, officials in Washington said today.

At least for the present, Mansfield and the rest of Ohio will not be affected. Aids of Price Administrator Leon Henderson, who will administer the program, said it will not be applied on a national basis, although Oil Coordinator Harold L. Ickes had said previously that such would be the case.

Officials said that when the rationing program starts early this spring, traffic court judges may be authorized to suspend violators'—especially speeders'—rationing cards. Such a ruling would aid enforcement of President Roosevelt's suggestion that state governors establish a 40-mile-per-hour speed limit to conserve rubber.

Ickes hinted that such a provision might be included when he announced yesterday that gasoline would be rationed in all areas affected by transportation shortages as soon as mechanics of a program can be worked out.

Rationing will be ordered in the areas where gasoline deliveries were cut 20 per cent, effective yesterday, to prevent exhaustion of dwindling stockpiles, Ickes indicated. These areas include 17 Atlantic coast states, the District of Columbia, Oregon, and Washington.

While details of the program still are in a "formative" stage, officials said they were able to provide the following rough outline of its probable nature:

OPPOSES TAX

AFL Raps General Sales Levy and Exemptions Cut.

WASHINGTON — (AP)—The American Federation of Labor today opposed recent proposals for a general sales tax and lower personal income tax exemptions.

Duplicating the stand of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the AFL, in a program presented to congress, said federal sales taxes would be strongly inflationary and "unfairly burdensome to workers already faced with a heavy increase in living costs."

"This nation," it said, "cannot afford to tax its workers so heavily that they will be unable to maintain their health and their ability to continue efficient production."

The AFL's program closely resembling the proposals of the treasury, urged instead that "the bulk of the nation's tax revenue come from surplus income."

I Shall Return To Philippines, General Says

Makes Terse Statements as Japs Extend Grip on New Guinea; U. S., Allies
Battle for Control Over Sky
Approaches to Australia.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON — (AP)—The war department reported today that two American army bombers scored a direct hit on a large enemy cruiser in a raid on the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain island, northeast of Australia. The attack took place Tuesday, a communique said. At the same time the war department disclosed that 15 army officers and men accompanied General Douglas MacArthur on his transfer from the Philippines to Australia to take command of the United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific.

(By United Press)
GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Gen. Douglas MacArthur promised today that he would lead a United Nations offensive against Japan.

"I shall return" to the Philippines, the new supreme commander in the southwest Pacific declared in a terse statement. He said that President Roosevelt had ordered him to Australia to organize offensive operations, with one primary purpose, the relief of the heroic defenders of Batan peninsula.

MacArthur's statement was released as American and Allied air forces battled for control of the skies on the island approaches to this continent and as Japanese jungle troops pressed into the rugged interior of New Guinea behind Nazi-trained native guides.

Twice, today's communique said, Japanese war planes lashed at Port Moresby, the base on the south coast of New Guinea that the enemy wants to use for invasion thrusts at Australia only 350 miles away.

It was acknowledged that the enemy was extending his grip on northern New Guinea and pressing deeper into the jungles and valleys, where there are a number of airports that could be used for attack on Port Moresby or to support an expected—and often rumored—Japanese sea offensive against that port.

There were rumors of clashes in New Guinea but late this evening official sources said that nothing was known regarding any contact with the enemy on the ground and that a high mountain ridge apparently still separates the Japanese from Australian forces on the south shore of the big island. An early clash, however, was believed likely.

High American sources emphasized that the defenders of Australia need more and more equipment, especially fast fighter planes and heavy bombers, to strike back at the powerful enemy forces assembled and being steadily reinforced in the islands north of Australia.

This urgent problem of material as well as questions of high strategy and the closest co-operation between American and Australian fighting forces will be discussed from Australian forces on the

UNDER WAY: Japan Launches Attack, Starts Battle of Burma

(By International News Service)
WITH BRITISH FORCES IN BURMA—The battle for Burma has begun.

The Japanese, after a lull of a week, launched an offensive northward beneath a blistering tropical sun. Tanks and armored cars were too hot to touch. The countryside was dusty and the usually water-filled paddies were dried up.

The terrific heat was not the only thing facing the invaders—the British forces were now in a position of defense and were awaiting the enemy's assault.

The main Japanese thrust is being made up the Burma road toward Mandalay with Toungpoo as its immediate objective, according to field reports.

The fact that only British forward troops are now in contact with the Japanese at Kan-yutkin, 40 miles from Toungpoo, shows that the main British forces have withdrawn further northward, and the Japanese were allowed to advance 40 miles into the Shwegyin area with little opposition.

Reports from the Promote road sector said that officials believe, judging from Japanese activity (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

IN FLAMES: Germans Destroy Kharkov, Prepare to Retreat

BULLETIN
LONDON — (INS)—The 35,000-ton German battleship Tirpitz, recently reported on the loose in the northern seas, actually is back in Trondheim, Norway, and may have been damaged by British war planes, authoritative British sources revealed today.

(By Associated Press)
Adolf Hitler's Ukraine armies were reported in Stockholm dispatches today to be making hasty preparations for a retreat from Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh," with the city in flames as Nazi demolition squads blasted military stores and oil supplies.

Against this picture of a major reverse for German arms, Hitler's field headquarters asserted that Russian troops driving into the Donets basin east of Kharkov had been "thrown back after a new attack and suffered heavy casualties."

Soviet dispatches yesterday said the Germans had slain 30,000 civilians in Kharkov, but there was no direct word from Moscow on the progress of military operations against the big steel center of 833,000 population, which the Germans captured last Oct. 24. Unofficial reports on Wednesday said Red army shock troops were fighting in Kharkov's suburbs.

Stockholm advances said great fires were burning in the city and that it was obvious the Germans' "whole upper Donets line is sagging to the point of collapse."

London reports said 500,000 German troops were believed based in the Kharkov area.

KINGS ROW + + + + +

By Henry Bellamann
(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER I

SPRING came late in the year 1890, so it came more violently, and the fullness of its burgeoning heightened the seasonal disturbance that made unquiet in the blood.

On this particular day, the 28th of April, the vast sky seemed vaster than ever—wider, bluer, higher. Continents of white clouds moved slowly from west to east, casting immense drifts of blue over the landscape which seemed alternately to expand and to shrink as sunlight and shadow followed in deliberate procession.

The roads were like the strands of a gigantic web, weaving and knitting closer and closer until they reached a center—Kings Row, the county seat. "A good town," everyone said. "A good, clean town. A good town to live in, and a good place to raise your children."

In the sagging center of this web of roads Kings Row presented an attractive picture as one drove in from the country. Elms, oaks, and maples arose in billows of early summer green. The white steeple of the Methodist church, the gilt weather vane of the Baptist, and the slender slate-covered spire of the Presbyterian thrust high. In the center arose the glistening dome of the courthouse. A few mansard roofs and an occasional turret broke through the leaves. Outside the comfortable shade a straggled of unconsidered Negro shacks and tumble-down houses of poor whites lay like back yard debris.

In the first glimpse of the town, if one happened to approach it from the west, one saw the public school building—Kings Row's special pride. It stood on a rise of ground and looked down on Town creek, where that noisy little stream bent itself around the west and south of the city limits. On an adjoining rise stood Aberdeen college, the Presbyterian school for boys.

The old brick sidewalks, uneven after many years, were mossy and cool under the shade trees. The houses stood back from the street, and the lawns were dotted with flower beds which would shortly glow with verbenas, and "foliage plants."

To the east of town the State Asylum for the Insane expanded its many wings through ample grounds. At night, with its hundreds of windows gleaming through the high trees, it had a palatial and festive air.

Kings Row was no frontier town with raw newness upon it. It had successfully simulated the mellowness and established ways of older towns east and south—towns remembered in the affections of the early builders.

A mid-afternoon drowsiness lay over Kings Row. Here and there in the residential sections some belated gardeners raked leaves and burned heaps of dead vines, the columns of blue smoke rising straight, and whitening as they thinned and drifted.

In the courthouse yard, a few men sat under the trees with chairs tilted back. Some, declaring that summer had come and that such heat was unseasonable, had taken off their coats.

"It's not healthy," they declared. "There'll be a lot of sickness if this keeps up."

A lumber wagon made its deliberate way along West street. Streets had borne names for years in Kings Row, but it was only lately that people had begun using them. Miles Jackson, editor of the Gazette, had started the fashion in the weekly paper. Some thought it sounded too pretentious for a town of 4,000 people.

"King's Row's trying to be tony, like Fielding."

The lumber wagon had reached the hill where the road sloped down to the bridge across Town creek. The driver awoke from pleasant meditations as the heavy load gained unwonted speed on the descent. He jerked the lines. "Whoa, where you think you're goin'?"

His voice carried easily through the open windows of the schoolroom where Miss Sally Venable held sway over some 60 children ranging in age from 10 to 14. Several boys giggled.

Miss Sally passed a hand over her face and smoothed away the derisive smile that lurked in her deeply seamed features. She sank back in her chair and shut out the sound of Lizzie Morris' mincing pronunciation. Her prominent brown eyes roved the room, resting for brief instants on first one face and then another. Her charges were intent on the story and remained unaware of her quick scrutinies.

Sally liked her children and she had been teaching long enough to see a generation grow up. She knew practically everybody. She knew the homes of these children, and their present fortunes, so she found interest in imagining their probable destinies.

She studied Cassandra Tower, the prettiest girl in town. Boys were beginning to be interested in Cassandra. Only yesterday Miss Venable had noticed a legend chalked on the wall: "Drake McHugh loves Cassandra Tower."

Miss Venable grinned. Those inscriptions multiplied in the spring of the year.

"Yes," she agreed, "Drake McHugh would be in love with Cassandra."

Drake was watching Cassandra

now, his long faun eyes glinting a little under his brows that grew shaggy together over the bridge of his arched nose. Drake, robust, deep-chested, hair always falling into his eyes. "A regular boy," most people said, but Sally Venable was not so sure of that. He was open and frank, but his mouth was a trifle loose for so young a boy. It was likely to go slack and sensual in a few years, unless—

Drake gave up his fruitless ogling of Cassandra Tower. That lovely creature was far away on an island with the Swiss Robinsons. Cassandra's oval face remained as ivory-cool and pale as always, although her eyes were excited. Odd eyes—very cold.

She always had that startled look: distended pupils, a strained look about her nostrils, her thin curved lips compressed.

Drake McHugh leaned forward and whispered something to Parris Mitchell who occupied the desk in front of him. Parris gave an impatient wiggle but glanced quickly at Cassandra. A slight flush warmed his downy face.

Miss Venable made a slight sound—tch! tch! but no one heard her.

Parris Mitchell was her pet. The boy was different in every way. Perhaps it was because he lived with that curious foreign grandmother, Madame von Elm. Dr. Alex Berdorf, pastor of the German Lutheran church, said that Parris spoke French and German better than he did English.

He looked foreign, she thought. Stocky and broad-shouldered. Vitality showed in his warm coloring and in the heavy eyebrows arched high over large hazel eyes.

A slight shadow showed on his upper lip, although he was only 12. He had a quickness of motion that bespoke Latin blood. That rippling motion of his hands, for example. He was the only boy in Kings Row who studied music.

Randy Monaghan, on the other side of Parris, had her attention derailed by the movements of the two boys. She leaned forward and looked under Cassandra's desk.

A grin, shrewd and a little coarse, widened her mouth. Randy was common, but with a frank and engaging commonness.

She made a low sibilant sound. Both Drake and Parris looked back. Thrusting her knee from under the desk, she snapped a red elastic garter and grinned again.

Miss Venable drew in her chin and screwed her head to one side to look at the gold chateleine watch she wore pinned to her blouse. Thank heaven, only 10 minutes more and she could go home, and change to cooler clothes.

The hands of Miss Venable's watch pointed to 4. She tapped on the desk, and instantly the room buzzed.

"Quiet, quiet! Clear your desks." Hats were distributed quickly by boys and girls who were appointed weekly to this privilege as a reward for good behavior.

Miss Venable often wondered why it was considered a privilege. Peyton Graves, a quiet boy in school, but a noisy one outside, slapped each hat down on the desk in front of its owner as he moved rapidly up the aisle.

"Here's your louse-cage," he remarked softly to each one.

"Position!" The children sat upright.

"Turn!" Heels clomped into the aisles.

"Rise!" Scuffling and scraping of feet. "Pass!"

Their departure was thunderous.

Miss Venable fetched a long, tremulous breath of relief. She walked to the window and watched the dispersing crowd. In the hall she could hear the hollow thumping of the upper grades descending the stairs. Shouts of the boys mingled with the shrill chatter of the girls.

Miss Venable was sometimes given to half-philosophical meditations on life and society as she saw it through her pupils. The prescribed social lines of the town fell upon them the moment they left the democracy of the classroom. The children of rich parents, the "nice" children, the poor children, and the children who rested under the fatal classification defined by other children as "tacky"—they were all like so many helpless pieces thrown out from a common center by some centrifugal force that sent them severally and separately on predestined ways. Already their feet were set on roads that led them farther and farther apart. "It's strange," she thought, "how quickly they feel it themselves, and how effectively it works. They seem to know it and to accept it. I guess that's a mercy."

cussed over the week-end by MacArthur, Prime Minister John Curtin and other government and military officials. MacArthur is understood to be due in Melbourne on Saturday and will go to Canberra on Sunday before establishing himself at his headquarters.

through the Japanese lines and proceed from Corregidor to Australia for the purpose, as I understand it, of organizing an American offensive against Japan.

"A primary purpose of this is the relief of the Philippines. I came through and I shall return."

He made his statement "somewhere in Australia."

As MacArthur made his statement, Prime Minister John Curtin said in a statement of his own: "We will take back what we have lost."

Japanese war planes lashed out in two new attacks on Port Moresby, 350 miles northeast of Australia, as their invasion forces drove through the interior of New Guinea toward it behind the Nazi-trained native guides and German "missionary" aides.

They had raided Darwin yesterday, reconnoitered over Port Moresby and attacked Tulagi and Florida in the Solomon Islands as aerial warfare intensified in speed and fury all along the northern and northeastern coastal frontiers.

Prime Minister Curtin reported that the Japanese activity in New Guinea, radiating out from the Lae and Salamaua areas of the Huron gulf, were now clearly extensive.

He said that in a raid yesterday on Koepang, in Dutch Timor 550 miles from Darwin, Allied planes encountered Japanese fighter opposition but evaded it successfully.

United States and Australian planes ranged wide over the New Guinea, Bismarck island and north coast areas hunting for Japanese invasion fleets, and eager to increase a bag of Japanese ships which now totaled up to 30 enemy craft, including 13 warships, sunk or damaged in less than two weeks.

United States, Australian and other Allied ground forces awaited confidently what more and more Australians believed would be an early test of the country's defenses against Japanese invasion thrusts, to which the increasingly savage Japanese aerial attacks appeared to be preludes.

There was a general feeling in official as well as unofficial quarters that the relentless attacks of the Allied planes on Japanese invasion ships may well have delayed a Japanese attack on Australia, and forced the enemy to reinforce and regroup its invasion units in the Bismarck islands and New Guinea.

JAPS MOVED

Hundred Aliens Reach Evacuation Center, Others to Follow.

LOS ANGELES — (AP)— One hundred Japanese, the first of some 150,000 enemy aliens and American-born Japanese evacuated from the Pacific coast for the duration of the war, arrived at the Manzanar reception center in Owens Valley today.

One thousand more Japanese were to leave Los Angeles voluntarily by train Monday for the camp where they will remain temporarily until they are sent to colonies established far from the west coast defense zone.

along the Irrawaddy river, that it presages a parallel push with Promote as their immediate objective and the Irrawaddy oilfields, 125 miles further north, as their subsequent objective.

The Japanese sailed up the Irrawaddy as far as a point 25 miles north of Tharrawaddy, where they contacted traitor Burmese natives to assist in their infiltration tactics.

The Japanese move on this front was believed still preliminary, since their main forces are still 45 miles south of Tharrawaddy and will have to advance 60 miles north before they meet the main British forces.

Stilwell Sets His Goal In Tokyo

CHUNGKING — (AP)— United States Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced today he had been placed in command of all U. S. forces in China, India and Burma, and promised that "we won't be satisfied until we see American and Chinese troops in Tokyo together."

Stilwell, recently made chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Allied supreme commander in the China theater, pledged that "everything China needs to help her war effort will be furnished without reservation."

"President Roosevelt has expressed his determination to use all means necessary to clear China of the Japanese," he told his first press conference. "I am unable to go into details as to just what help or equipment is on the way, but you may assume from the fact that I have been assigned to command any United States forces in China, Burma and India that the effort contemplated is large."

"The United States means business and we won't be satisfied until we see American and Chinese troops in Tokyo together."

Stilwell had just returned from an inspection trip to the British-Chinese positions in Burma, where he commands the Fifth and Sixth Chinese armies.

Chinese Repulse Japs In Burma

CHUNGKING — (AP)— Chinese troops in northern Burma today made contact with Japanese forces at four points along the Burma-Thailand frontier.

The Japanese made several attempts to cross the border. All were repulsed.

British troops are now holding a line extending from the Sittang river across the railroad to the coast north of Bassein.

Scorching Junked Autos for Defense Steel

Fire swept through the "auto graveyard" at the Universal Parts company on Ashland road last night as operators prepared the junk cars for use in war production. Upper photo shows some of the cars afire. Lower photo shows how cars looked this morning after wood and upholstery had been burned off 200 of the cars at the lot. They'll now be taken to Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company for use in steel production. The other hundred will follow after the same scorch treatment is applied. Several hundred persons were attracted to the scene of the fire last night by the flames and glow in the sky, although it was not as spectacular as had been expected.

Rumania, Hungary Threaten Border War

LONDON — (AP)— A "war within a war" is threatened in Rumania and Hungary because of the bitter dispute between the two Axis-allied countries over Transylvania, the London Daily Express said today.

The Express said several months of tension on both sides had been broken in a radio speech by Rumanian Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu, who served notice that his nation was determined to regain Transylvania and would fight, if necessary, to achieve that objective.

NEW BOOK BY STEINBECK ON LIBRARY LIST

'Moon Is Down' Deals With People In Countries Conquered By War.

John Steinbeck's widely-discussed new book, "The Moon Is Down," that tells in personal terms why free men and women cannot be conquered is now available at the Mansfield Public library.

For the first time since the author wrote his first novel 12 years ago Steinbeck has gone outside of America for his setting. The scene is peopled by the men and women of any conquered country although the author has purposely refrained from making the story literally true to actual events.

One of the runners-up in the Latin-American novel contest is NAYAR, written by Miguel Angel Menendez and translated into English by Angel Flores. The theme of this novel is indicative of the subject nearest to the author's heart which is the complex and difficult adjustment which is going on in Mexico, as in every other Latin American country, between the white man, the Indian and the half-breed. Particularly, it is the story of two men's wanderings and of the powerful and simple mysteries the forests reveal to those who live in them.

Mary, Queen of Scots and Bothwell, whom his enemies called "this glorious, rash and hazardous young man," are the magnificent subjects of Margaret Irwin's new historical romance, THE GAY GALLARD. Their tragic story, one of the strangest dramas in history, unfolds with all the color, pageantry and fever passion of the Elizabethan world.

Other fiction: THE HEART OF ANOTHER by Gellhorn; JADE EARRINGS by Onions; THAT WAS ALDERBURY by Duffus.

WESTWARD THE COURSE by Paul McGuire is concerned mainly with the expansion of Western man and the Western mind in the lands under Asia. This journey of exploration looks back through the romantic past and ahead into the practical future—from Vancouver southwest to Hawaii, down to the Fiji and New Zealand, overland through Australia and across the Timor Sea to Java, Bali and Sumatra, then on to Malaya and Singapore. The author is a brilliant and well-traveled writer who knows his subject thoroughly.

SIMON BOLIVAR by Emil Ludvig, biographer of Bismarck and Napoleon, is an account of the life and deeds of the Liberator of South America and was written under the auspices of the Venezuelan government. Because of Ludvig's approach to his subject, he tells little of actual battle but presents, instead, a superb psychological portrait.

THE MUSIC OF SPAIN by Gilbert Chase is an interpretive history of the music of Spain which traces its course from the eminent churchmen and saints who organized the Christian liturgy in Seville, Toledo, and Saragossa, the music of the present time. Of particular interest are two chapters on the music of Latin America and Portuguese music.

CORDELL HULL by Harold B. Hinton is the dramatic story of a man who rose from humble surroundings in the Tennessee hills to become the most ardent champion of democracy and one of the foremost statesmen in the world today.

Program Being Considered To Revoke Gas Ration Cards For Traffic Violations.

1. Ration cards will be good only for a specified period of time, making it impossible for motorists to "hoard" their cards for vacation trips.

2. Priorities will be designated to allow operation of all essential gasoline consumers, such as trucks, physicians, buses, airlines, and taxi-cabs. These probably will be similar to the priorities provision in the War Production Board order curtailing deliveries.

3. The severity of the rationing order will vary according to local supply conditions. Tickets indicated that strictest control probably will be exercised in New England where fuel supplies are dangerously low.

4. The rationing order will replace the present delivery restriction order, which will be terminated.

GETS SENTENCE

Florist Ordered to Reformatory On Blackmail Charge.

CLEVELAND — (AP)— Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merriam today sentenced David Brunswick, 25-year-old florist, to Mansfield reformatory for blackmailing a competitor.

Brunswick was indicted in October, 1940, on two charges that he orally threatened Michael Osborne, a competing florist. Shortly after Brunswick made his alleged threats Osborne's shop was damaged by bombs.

ARMY WILL SEEK CHANGE IN DRAFT

Needs Authority To Use Men, 45-64, Who Will Register on April 27.

Government officials also may ask for power to blanket men into war production jobs to prevent men from shifting from one factory to another and interrupting production.

If the workers refuse to remain at jobs assigned to them, the government will enlist them into the army and force them to stay on the job at army pay starting at $21 a month, according to tentative drafts of proposed legislation.

Plans also are going forward to provide military training for the 18 and 19 year olds, but there again it will require enabling legislation from congress. Several plans are being discussed, including full-time training at regular camps and part-time training such as that given national guard units in peacetime.

Officials point out that many former army officers in the 45 to 64 age group could be "drafted" to drill the youths without taking officers out of the regular army.

Sees Shortage of Labor By Autumn

WASHINGTON — (AP)— President Roosevelt said today that shortages of labor probably will begin to develop in American war industries by next fall.

For the present, the chief executive said, there is sufficient manpower for the nation's expanding war plants. But he was inclined to believe that the situation will change by autumn.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1942.

"Profiteering" is an ugly word at the best—but it is particularly obnoxious in wartime.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, is now starting out to milk the dairy industry.

Voters are being asked to send only capable men to congress this year—but can such a radical change be effected in such short order?

Five New Cars In Mansfield

ONE ITEM in the Chamber of Commerce monthly bulletin, just issued, serves to emphasize the radical change coming about in the field of private automobile transportation—and the importance of conserving present cars and tires.

This is the season when, under ordinary conditions, many new cars would be seen on Mansfield streets—but had you noticed the rarity of new cars this spring?

Here's why. In February of last year 279 new automobiles were sold in Mansfield while last month only 14 new cars came into possession of Mansfield owners.

This means, in simplest form, that for the duration of war very few people can qualify, under rationing restrictions, for the purchase of a new car or tires, and that use of present equipment, or buying a better used car, will be the only course open for a long time to come.

Deprived of the opportunity to get a new car, it seems not unreasonable that car owners should have money to pay for the best available service on their old cars, so as to keep them in good running order as long as possible. This includes attention to tires, and repair of weak spots, as well as frequent inspection of mechanical parts.

President Roosevelt has asked for voluntary limitation of motor car speed to 40 miles an hour and Governor Bricker requests Ohio motorists to co-operate. State law permits maximum speed of 50 miles on highways not otherwise restricted, so the 40-mile limit is entirely voluntary, induced by common sense in the matters of safety and conserving cars and tires. When you are driving at 40 miles an hour and another car flashes past at around 60 you have a right to think what you think about the driver.

Civilian Defense Against Fires

LOCAL ACTIVITY in organizing and training for civilian defense, to the extent of its real purposes, should not be retarded because of public disgust over the attempted introduction of frills, furbelows and promotion schemes into this important preparedness program.

Of even more immediate concern in Mansfield that a set-up of precautions against an air raid is the proposed city-wide organization and training of fire watchers and a supplementary fire-fighting force.

Mansfield is moving slowly toward expansion of fire department facilities but is still inadequately provided for anything more than ordinary handling of one fire at a time.

Entirely aside from possible later danger of bombing attacks, including use of incendiary bombs, there is need in Mansfield for a keener realization of fire hazards from common causes, and an alert group of volunteers—people who give uncompensated time and service to civil defense after working hours—will do much to make others conscious of the need to be constantly on guard against fires.

Even if there is no attack from without, this work will be well worthwhile. As C. Lester Walker writes in Harper's, "We are a profligate race where fire is concerned. . . . The flames have taken $3,000,000,000 of our property since 1929 and each year 10,000 lives. So if war-born alarms and precautions cut our normal fire losses even ten per cent. all the effort, time, and money—and even the hysteria—will have been worth it."

Petain's Place In Vichy Government

THE SITUATION and behavior of the Vichy government have been a puzzle to Americans. The way in which our government has seemed to show too much patience, almost to appease, has been hard to understand. A man in a group discussing the war the other day presented a new and interesting point of view.

"The trouble lies in confusing Petain with other men of Vichy," he said. "Think of Petain all by himself for a moment. He may not have approved leftist movements. He's a soldier, maybe too conservative, but honestly devoted to France."

If Petain had wanted to go all over to Hitler he could have done it the first day, in June, 1940, or any time since. But he has not gone over yet.

He refused to have Laval—and even Hitler could not make him take Laval. He got Laval, maybe as bad. But the point is he's held a club over Hitler's head, that he's said no whenever and as far as he could. Hitler has more power, but he is constantly being balked by the old marshal. Petain could have handed the fleet over long ago. Hitler may be getting it now, but it took him almost two years to get it.

"You people who think France is done for will be surprised. Petain may fall. But he's still fighting France has been unified by her misery, and you'll see her yet giving a good account of herself."

If this is true it explains much. If not, too bad. Within a year or less we shall probably have the solution of the French mystery.

Banking Gears To War Program

THE WAY in which banks have swiftly and efficiently adapted themselves to unprecedented demands imposed by war deserves more recognition and appreciation than it is likely to receive.

Banks have literally placed all of their resources at the disposal of defense industries. It has been said on high authority that no needed defense work has been delayed for lack of bank financing.

The banks have done an extremely effective job—and a job which produces them no profit whatsoever—in selling defense bonds and stamps to the public.

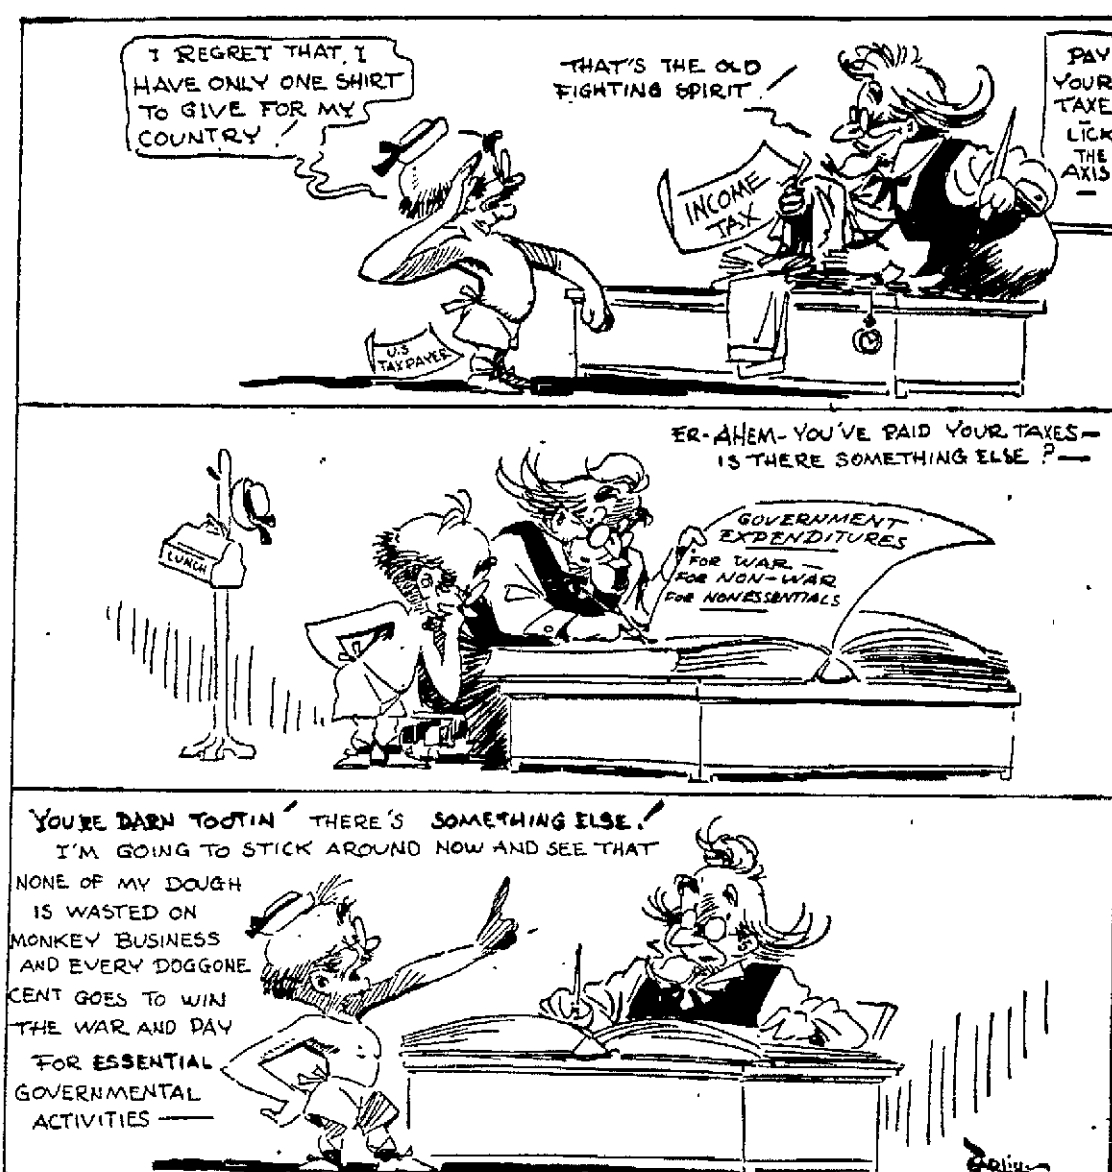

They have co-operated fully with the treasury department in the intricate work of freezing the financial resources of industries and individuals of enemy nations. A full list of bank achievements would be a long one. Banking has proved its ability to gear itself to the needs of war no less than to the needs of peace.

General MacArthur is to be awarded a Harvard degree in absentia—but he has reached an age at which this will probably have no bad effect.

It is now being referred to as "100 billions" instead of $100,000,000,000, to save wear and tear on ciphers.

It is also noted that, as motor traffic decreases, fewer pedestrians are having "that run-down feeling."

THE TAXPAYER'S CONTINUING OBLIGATION

Mellett Gets More Office Space

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

AS DIRECTOR of Uncle Sam's Office of Government Reports, Lowell Mellett is Washington's capital source of wartime's official information. The ten federal executive departments and hundreds of subdivisions and independent agencies all have a public staff each, but Lowell coordinates their assorted activities. To give an idea of the magnitude of his job, he's having a building erected for his own and his assistants' accommodation in the very center of town. It's to be one of those temporary frame buildings that are going up, here, there and nearly everywhere to meet the emergency's requirements.

Undoubtedly the entire aggregation of 'em will be replaced later by elegant structures of stone or brick and mortar, but just now they're needed in too much of a hurry to permit that degree of permanency. This affair of Lowell's is to be only two stories high for the present, but it'll cover a whole city block, with room in it for a sizable army of the boss's deputies.

Some critics say Lowell demands a bigger force than is necessary. When he asked congress for an appropriation to build his office, the committee's request was referred to a subcommittee. Being a resourceful chap, though, he did a bit of fixing and finally squeezed out a quarter of a million dollars.

Visitors Are At Sea. Personally I don't think he over-estimates his tasks' proportions. Washington simply swarms with visiting out-of-town businessmen, here in connection with war production that urgently needs being attended to.

The visitors, however, since they are strangers, don't know what functions they should call on. To get their questions answered. It's no wonder that they don't, either. Governmental bureaus have multiplied at such a rate in the last few months that they themselves aren't very certain which is which among 'em. This drives the visitors cuckoo and materially hampers our war effort. The out-of-townmen seem to me entitled to insist on a headquarters that can set 'em straight on their errands. That is Lowell's outfit's mission. Atty only doubt is that even the Office of Government Reports is equal to dealing adequately with the problem. The mix-up's enough to set any expert guessing.

Lowell Mellett is the hardest official in Washington to gain access to.

I agree that information obtained from one of his subordinates should be sufficient for an inquiring citizen—if the subordinate's able to give it. Yet there's an occasional knotty issue that it's desirable for the main boss to pass on, and anybody who can horn into that bird's private office is a curiosity.

Mellett's secretariat is the hardest booted bunch in Washington.

It's TOO hard boiled. It's becoming unpopular. Publicity that makes the public sore isn't a desirable form of publicity.

The fact is that Lowell Mellett is a newspaper man, and a cooking good one, but he doesn't realize that all his good work can be nullified by an intermediate bunch of unintelligent secretaries.

Man About Manhattan

Defeated Poet

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Norman Corwin's press agent calls him "the 31-year-old genius of radio."

If Corwin isn't a genius, he has certainly found the short cut to promotion and pay.

Recently, just one of his broadcasts were listened to by 60 million people. This was "We Hold These Truths," written in observance of the 130th anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

Recently, his services were acquired by all four major networks at once, as conductor of the government's series, "This Is War."

Recently, a baker's dozen of his radio plays were published under the title of "13 by Corwin."

Recently, he said, "Some radio writers feel they must shock an audience into listening. They're afraid to ask the people to think. But some audiences like to think, and who am I to discourage them?"

After his Bill of Rights broadcast Corwin received 1,350 letters. Among those congratulating him were Irvin Cobb, Maxwell Anderson, George Jean Nathan, and President Roosevelt. Then "We Hold These Truths" was published, and his first act was to waive the royalties.

THERE isn't anything too spectacular or unusual in Corwin's early record. He was a newspaperman, a color writer. For awhile he was a dramatic critic and got himself banned from various theaters for his blunt opinions. He came to New York and politely sought an audience with the heads of the various radio stations.

I am told that he was offered a seven-year writing and directing job by Hollywood only a few weeks ago—and turned it down.

He looks at the mounting baskets of mail today, and remembers a time back in his career when he made his first broadcast. That was in Boston. He was on the air ten weeks. During that time the fans wrote him exactly three letters.

HE TELLS you that he is a defeated poet. For awhile, during his newspaper days, he used to write about the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox in rhyme. Or maybe it was blank verse. After reading a number of these, his editor quietly moved him into the spot of radio columnist, and his versifying came to an end.

Corwin is a soft spoken young man and he wears a moustache. He has been highly praised and emphatically damned by critics.

So maybe he is a genius after all.

LIBERTY LIMERICKS.

An elderly baker named Joe, Said—"If I were younger, I'd go And enlist at the camps, But instead I'll buy stamps— I know Uncle Sam needs my dough."

A little dough put into war tools now means victory later. Save U. S. Defense Bonds and Stamps regularly!

Timely Editorial

America's Sleeves Rolled.

The charges of complacency directed against the people generally in this country on the war effort are for the most part inaccurate. If we are short of our objectives it is not due to the apathy of the rank and file of citizens. Military enlistments run strong. The people accept the piled billions of taxes without opposition. No restriction or limitation of commodities is questioned. This shows patriotic fiber.

A recent Gallup opinion poll reveals this commendable spirit in other ways. Approximately half the housewives say they are willing to desert the dishes to take jobs in defense factories if they are needed. Employed persons were asked in the survey if they were willing to quit their present work to go into defense factories at whatever the pay would be there, and 57 per cent said yes. Even if such a shift would require their moving to another city, 38 per cent still said they would go.

Does that show sound morale? It does. Given proper leadership this country will meet fully the challenges of this war in a spirit befitting the nation's traditions.—Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Unrest Among Merchant Sailors Because of Mounting U-Boat Toll

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Some very heroic stories have appeared in the newspapers, recently telling how sailors have lived for days on rafts after their ships were sunk by Nazi submarines.

What these stories do not tell, however, is the growing unrest among seamen because of the tremendous loss of life from these sinkings. Not only are skilled seamen likely to become scarce along the Atlantic coast, but their leaders are warning that something must be done to remedy the tragic situation.

The exact number of men lost with each ship is published by the navy daily. And all you have to do is take a paper and pencil to figure the total losses. They are terrific. From some ships only one or two survivors have been picked up. This is in contrast to rescues from British ships of about 42 per cent.

There are two reasons for this: 1—U. S. vessels have been chiefly tankers, which spread oil on the water. This catches fire and burns the men, or else the oil clings to them, weighing them down.

2—The navy has not been doing a good job of patrolling the Atlantic coast.

The latter conclusion is now regarded in Washington as inescapable. Not only are we losing more ships than we are building, but some steamer captains complain that in a single day they have sighted only one patrol plane.

Biggest complaint, however, is that the navy will not permit U. S. fishing vessels off the Atlantic coasts to carry radio sending sets. U. S. fishermen have volunteered to help patrol the coasts, watch for submarines, also pick up survivors. However, without radio transmitters they cannot report submarines if they should see one.

British fishermen, equipped with radios, have been the eyes of the British navy in the North Sea. But not American fishermen.

Meanwhile we lose an average of more than one ship a day.

Rep. A. S. Mike Monroney is vowing an almost one-man campaign to do away with what he describes as the department of "artificially unnecessary 'Pullman car farmers'—department officials and employees who do a lot of train traveling."

His goal is to cut the department's $16,000,000 travel and per diem allowance appropriation in half for the next fiscal year. His method is tedious—but it's the only method that could be used. He's trying to cut the $16,000,000 in half by chipping off a few thousands here, a few there. Each stroke on the chisel requires a special amendment. There would have to be more than 40 of them.

For example, one of the amendments would cut the forest service travel expense from $373,000 to $363,100, a saving of only $9,900. When Monroney started bringing his amendments to the floor, the house showed a marked lack of interest, so much so that it was difficult for him to get more than a 5-minute debate at the start. Congressional leaders were so disinterested that some left the floor. When the vote was taken and Monroney's first amendment lost by only six votes, administration leaders sat up and took notice.

The fight has just started. Monroney says, if the trend continues against him on the separate amendments, he plans to drop them an overall amendment to make a blanket slash of $8,000,000 in the account.

Where the congressman caught the defense of the appropriation short was that there is no breakdown of the travel allowances other than by agencies and no way of proving in advance that the allowances are absolutely necessary.

KNOWING Monroney has generally favored administration farm legislation, I asked him how he hit upon this particular item. "In studying the budget I came upon this item for $16,000,000 for travel by agriculture department. This is of course, exclusive of the expense and maintenance of government owned cars. I got thinking that there are some states whose income tax payments to the government don't equal that much. I looked that up and I found that there were 16 states, not one of which in 1941 paid in $16,000,000 in income taxes to the government."

"Without going into the travel needs of the department at that point, it seemed to be that something must be wrong somewhere if the department was spending more for train and per diem travel than the federal income tax revenue from any one of 16 states."

"When I found that the post-office department, with its vast inspection system, etc., spent only $5,367,000 for travel last year, I decided to go to work on this. It may be 'small item' measured in terms of the billions for defense. But the people pay their taxes in comparatively small amounts, and outside of war expenditures now, it seems to me that's how we ought to spend them."

Three WPB Busts.

(The Washington Merry-Go-Round will publish several articles on the War Production board and its achievements. This is the first.)

PRIVATELY, War Production Board insiders were delighted with the explosion caused by the resignation of plain-talking Robert Guthrie. It forced into the open a sour under cover situation on which Donald Nelson has been pussyfooting for weeks.

This is the retention of dollar-a-year men in key posts despite the fact they have displayed neither the capacity nor the all-out attitude demanded by the stupendous war effort.

This was one of the two underlying causes for OPM's dismal failure. The other was Knudsen's lack of a tough production policy.

When Nelson took over, and OPM became WPB, he laid down tough production policies. That was a big improvement. But Nelson has yet to plug up the other fatal weakness. He has hard policies but soft tenants, and this is not the sort of combination to win the war on the all-important industrial front.

That was what all the shooting

ABOUT our own woods, and those of our neighbors, I have seen black walnut, oak, ash, hickory and sugar trees struck by heavy bolts of lightning.

One large oak with long spreading branches was struck in the open field. I never saw a tree so completely demolished. The curly, knotted crotches were split apart, and only held to the trunk by splinters. From a distance, the prone branches, resting slightly upon the splintered trunk, appeared like a gigantic octopus.

On the southern side, a mighty root was unearthed and lay upon the surface. I examined some splinters closely. Along the path the singing bolt had taken, nearly every eye was charred. I took my pen knife and cut away the bark. The roots beneath the soil contained no evidence of life. The splendid landmark of the neighborhood was dead.

Each year, among the timbered ridges, east, or west, lightning alone destroys perhaps a million acres of forest. Its destructive power is not limited to the wilderness. It strikes the farmers' metal fences and kills sheep and cattle as the current courses around the field. It strikes barns and houses, and even sings the earth itself upon treeless bluffs, or open prairies.

Yet, with all this destructive power, it serves a greater purpose. Lightning maintains a balance of positive and negative electricity between earth and sky and keeps the earth charged. The sudden, splintering, zigzag bolt, hotter than any man-made heat, precipitates thousands upon thousands of tons was about behind Guthrie's dramatic walk-out. He is no left-winger nor New Dealer. He is a very successful, hard-headed Kentucky business man who believes simply that the way to win the war is to give everything to that effort.

For months he tried to pursue such a course by compelling profit-minded consumer goods industries to convert their desperately needed facilities to war production. Guthrie was opposed, hampered and overruled by dollar-a-year men who apparently were more interested in protecting the profits of their corporations than winning the war.

He battled to curtail the production of radios, electrical appliances, and the use of copper. In every case he was thwarted by business-as-usual WPB moguls.

Within WPB, three Nelson lieutenants have long been under fire by all-outers on charges of inadequacy. They are—

Philip Reed, chairman of the board of General Electric, who is head of the Division of Industry operations.

William H. Harrison, vice president of A. T. & T., chief of the Division of Production.

Leslie Rosenwald, Sears Roebuck director and former America Firster, who directs the division handling the scrap collecting programs.

Their Records.

NELSON's choice of Reed for the Industry Operations Division caused much eye-brow raising throughout the war agencies. Reed's record in three OPM jobs had been so sour that it was taken for granted Nelson would send him packing. Instead, Reed was promoted, and in his new job, has done no better than he did before.

He has repeatedly clashed with subordinates seeking to speed up conversion to war production and privately there is very strong feeling against him among the all-outers.

Harrison, Nelson recently had to slap down publicly when he put out a statement that the huge ship building program could not be met because of the scarcity of materials. Nelson reported that the program could and would be met and no more has been heard from Harrison.

He is also charged by the all-outers with pussyfooting on conversion and not compelling greater use of machinery and equipment.

Rosenwald has an enormous staff. They are so numerous they roll over one another. But while he is found on every hand all over the country, steel mills are closing down for lack of the metal; and the output of tanks, guns and ships is seriously threatened.

Insiders say Rosenwald's division is the sorest in WPB. He is charged with lack of drive, executive capacity and imagination. When a bold plan is submitted to him, he recoils in horror. It took weeks to get him to sanction forceful measures against a junk dealer who was holding 100,000 tons of scrap for profiteering prices.

Rosenwald fiddled around for several months on a quest to collect the vast quantities of scrap to be found in farmers' barns and yards. In 24 hours a young movie executive, who had been called in on the problem by other WPB chiefs, produced a simple and practical plan to do the job by using the WPA.

The inside word is that Reed and Rosenwald are slated for the axe. It's long overdue.

A Farmer's Diary

Lightning

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ABOUT our own woods, and those of our neighbors, I have seen black walnut, oak, ash, hickory and sugar trees struck by heavy bolts of lightning.

One large oak with long spreading branches was struck in the open field. I never saw a tree so completely demolished. The curly, knotted crotches were split apart, and only held to the trunk by splinters. From a distance, the prone branches, resting slightly upon the splintered trunk, appeared like a gigantic octopus.

On the southern side, a mighty root was unearthed and lay upon the surface. I examined some splinters closely. Along the path the singing bolt had taken, nearly every eye was charred. I took my pen knife and cut away the bark. The roots beneath the soil contained no evidence of life. The splendid landmark of the neighborhood was dead.

Each year, among the timbered ridges, east, or west, lightning alone destroys perhaps a million acres of forest. Its destructive power is not limited to the wilderness. It strikes the farmers' metal fences and kills sheep and cattle as the current courses around the field. It strikes barns and houses, and even sings the earth itself upon treeless bluffs, or open prairies.

Yet, with all this destructive power, it serves a greater purpose. Lightning maintains a balance of positive and negative electricity between earth and sky and keeps the earth charged. The sudden, splintering, zigzag bolt, hotter than any man-made heat, precipitates thousands upon thousands of tons of nitrogen from the air, and replenishes the earth.

A thunder storm is a soil builder and a crop producer. The more storms during a summer season, the less commercial nitrogen is required. A neighbor, some years ago, called my attention to the increased greenness of his pasture beneath the sagging wires of a high tension line. I saw plainly that there was a difference.

When rolling thunder echoes through the night, I shall not forget that although the lightning may destroy, it also builds. That heavy downpour brings to my fields the riches of the sky.

HAS NOVEL PLAN

HAMILTON, N. Y. —(U.P.)— A university professor has an original scheme for ending the war with Japan — start Nippon's volcanoes erupting.

Dr. Harold O. Whitnall, professor of geology at Colgate university, asserts that aerial bombs could burst the plugs in the "throats" of volcanoes.

The pent-up pressure of gases in the bowels of the volcano, he says, would send lava tumbling down on Japanese cities and might produce earthquakes and tidal waves.

EMPLOYMENT ON UPTREND HERE, CHAMBER SAYS

Month's Report Shows 400 Men Called Back to Jobs During February.

Mansfield, with 49 per cent of its industrial employees already engaged in defense work, showed an increase in industrial employment during February as 400 men were called back to work, according to the monthly business report of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, released today.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the chamber, reported that employment in Mansfield plants jumped from 10,854 in January to 11,254 in February as the firms began calling back men furloughed last fall after priorities pinched the production of civilian products.

Routzon said that chamber survey shows that 5,514 of the 11,254 employed at present are in defense work. The Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing plant is expected to transfer more men over to war production before fall.

Another surprise in the business report was an increase in building. Priorities have paralyzed almost all building projects, except those needed for defense but in February $80,000 worth of construction was started as compared to only $44,391 in January. Building still shows a loss of 61 per cent from last year's standards however.

Other departments reported losses since January but maintained gains over their 1941 status.

Automobile registrations naturally dropped following the government rationing program was set up. Only 14 cars were sold in February as compared to 43 in January and 157 in December. In February, 1941, Mansfield dealers sold 279 cars.

Bank clearings showed an 18 per cent drop from January but maintained a six per cent gain over February, 1941, and a 13 per cent gain since the first of the year. Clearings during February were $8,659,479.

Bus passengers also showed a drop from January but maintained gains for the year. The number of passengers in February was 213,459 as compared to 215,967 in January and 185,111 in February, 1941.

Postal receipts dropped from $24,870 in January to $22,907. In February last year, $32,467 worth of receipts was reported. The loss since January was only two per cent, however.

Mercantile employment dropped from 2,150 in January to 2,075 in February. Although this was a 3.5 per cent loss, it showed a gain of 4.6 per cent over February, 1941, and of 6.27 per cent since the first of the year.

Sales tax receipts showed a decline from $43,574 in January to $39,104 last month which was also a drop from the $45,710 collected in February last year.

Carloadings decreased from 3,912 for the first month to 3,336 last month. During February, 1941, workers loaded 3,974 railroad cars here.

Relief costs went up slightly as cases increased from 361 to 369. This represented a large drop from February in 1941, however, when there were 524 relief cases.

CITY'S 375 GIRL SCOUTS SET TO OBSERVE 30TH ANNIVERSARY

Mansfield's 375 Girl Scouts will celebrate the 30th anniversary of Girl Scouting in the United States Monday night when they present a program in Park Avenue Baptist church open to parents and friends.

The program will begin at 7:30 p. m. with a flag ceremony and will be followed by an interpretation of Girl Scouting in relation to defense presented by approximately 150 Scouts. Dorothy Arlin will act as narrator for the 10 presentations.

Mrs. John W. Graham, Girl Scout commissioner, and Mrs. Tom Ford, deputy commissioner, will be in charge of the "Volunteers For Victory" ceremony that will precede the closing feature, a "Happy Birthday" reception.

Scout projects introduced in the dramatization, "Girl Scouting in Defense," include: Dramatics, troop 17; Brownies, troops 19 and 22; singing, troop 23; homemaking, troop 21; first aid and safety, troop 5; community life, troop 18; international friendship, troop 16; folk dancing, troop 10; camping, troops 6 and 16; nature, troop 15. Mrs. John Salyer, president of the Leaders' association, acted as general chairman for the program. The committee included Dorothy Arlin, arrangements; Miriam Hoff and Lila Cutting, program; Janice Carter, publicity; and Marjorie Wentz, refreshments.

THEATERS

Technicolor Musical.

Irving Berlin's music, the comedy of Bob Hope and the dancing of Vera Zorina embellish the technicolor musical extravaganza, "Louisiana Purchase," opening Saturday at the Ohio. The picture has its setting in modern New Orleans and features a New Orleans Mardi Gras and its climactic Beaux Arts Ball. Hope appears as the unwitting tool of a band of shady politicians who try to pin the guilt on him until Victor Moore, in the role of a northern senator arrives for an investigation. Irene Bordoni, French stage star, Raymond Walburn and Maxie Rosenbloom are in the cast.

Kyser and His Band.

The hilarious story of a publicity trick that has unexpected consequences forms the basis of the song-studded comedy, "Playmates," starring Kay Kyser and John Barrymore, at the Madison starting Saturday. Kyser plays himself, a popular band leader, while Barrymore is cast as a Shakespearean actor, now on the skids who is trying to land a radio contract to bring the works of the immortal bard to the air. Ginny Simms, the "College of Musical Knowledge," Lupe Velez and May Robson are others in the cast. "Valley of the Sun," the co-feature, is a story of the pioneer west with Lucille Ball and James Craig.

Adventure Story.

Beautiful Gene Tierney is presented as an exotic half-caste French-Arabian girl in "Sundown," a picture laid in the hinterlands of Britain's Kenya Colony in Central East Africa and opening Saturday at the Park. The story revolves around a small group of white men who rule over several hundred thousand blacks and are in constant danger of annihilation by semi-savage tribes. Bruce Cabot, Reginald Gardner and Harry Carey are in the cast while the mysterious element is injected by Miss Tierney. "Tanks a Million," a Hal Roach comedy with William Tracy, James Gleason and Noah Beery, jr., is the second attraction.

Warlike Drama.

Played against a background of bomb-ravaged London in September, 1940, "Confirm or Deny," the Ritz attraction, features Don Ameche and Joan Bennett in the story of a newspaperman who gives up the scoop of a lifetime for the love of a girl. Miss Bennett plays the English girl whose love of country surpasses all else. Roddy McDowall is in the cast. Buck Jones in "The Gunman From Bodie," a rough-riding drama is the co-feature.

Tracy Starred.

Spencer Tracy is starred in "Stanley and Livingston," opening Saturday at the Majestic. Richard Greene and Nancy Kelly are in the supporting cast. Tim Holt's thriller, "Thundering Hoofs," shares the bill.

Housewives Plant Gardens to Beat Rising Prices

MIAMI, Fla. —(INS)— Defense gardens are springing up all over Miami—in flower boxes, back yards, metal tanks and vacant lots—as a logical answer to the fast-rising prices of vegetables in the Miami area.

Housewives aren't the only persons turning to a midget back-to-the-farm movement. Stores report that most of the sudden seed-buying trade is from the white collar office worker.

Stenographers have been turning farmerette with abandon. Welding wicked hoes, they can be seen, at the crack of dawn, converting flowerbeds in patches of cabbage or onions or carrots, before they trek off to their typewriters in offices. Agricultural efforts of house-

Said Billy to Charley: "When we finish this pinocchio game, let's go over to Eddie and Earl's and have a glass of that famous Tam O'Shanter ale, that they have on draught." A bystander remarked, "No use going over there on Friday or Saturday nights, as you never can get a seat." So, not investigating further, they went elsewhere and finally went home disappointed.

"ABBEY HAS JUST SCORED A BEAT. AS A HOSTESS HER FAME IS COMPLETE. SHE HEARD UNCLE SAM SAY TO EAT EGGS EVERY DAY. SO SHE SERVED CHEESE SOUFFLE FOR HER TREAT"

Your Electrical Servant

NICE GOIN' ABBEY!

Good Good DELICIOUS EASY TO MAKE TASTY

Here's Abbey's Recipe for Cheese Souffle as given by your Home Economist.

ABBEY'S RIGHT... Uncle Sam

did say, through his Office of Defense Health and Welfare Service, that every adult and child should eat at least a pint of milk, or cheese, and one egg every day, among other vitamin-containing, strength-building foods. So, reasoned Abbey, why not put them all together into a tasty, delicious, easy-to-prepare dish. That's why she made cheese souffle. And did it make a hit? You just know it did. So Abbey's going to have it again tomorrow for her own family. And you can bet she'll cook it the simple, easy way—electrically. She cooks all her vegetables electrically, too, because the electric way she uses practically no water and saves all the precious vitamins. Take a tip from Abbey. Gain fame as a hostess, and at the same time save yourself time and work by cooking the easy, healthful way, electrically.

The electric roaster makes an ideal table oven for preparing cheese souffle and similar dishes. You can use it for baking, roasting, or stewing, too. A limited number are in stock at... $0.00

NEW ORLEANS.—(INS)—Joe Simmons is one guy who works on the theory that beauty is only skin deep, but you can take his word for it—the war has caused a boom in his business.

Simmons is the self-titled world's champion tattoo artist, and he says his business in New Orleans has increased from 2,871 different tattoo works on Simmons' body, and he gives them a likeness on their own anatomy. He looks upon his art and each of the designs on his own body as things of beauty, although they're only skin deep, and his favorite example is what he terms an oriental masterpiece, spread across his entire back.

Preceding the dinner a toast was given by Miss Anita Siebelton, who presented a corsage to the new president, Miss Eileen Minard. Following the banquet retiring president, Miss Dorothy Kelly, gave a short talk. She then turned the meeting over to Miss Minard. Each new officer presented a poem describing her duties and her plans for the coming year.

A gift was presented to Miss Kelly by Miss Minard. Miss Marguerite Boyer made presentation of a farewell gift to William Hoffman, who is moving to Canton. The newly installed officers are, in addition to Miss Minard as president, Miss Dorothy Blackstone, vice president; Miss Boyer, secretary; Miss Eva Schultz, treasurer; Mrs. Raymond Jurgens, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard James, sergeant-at-arms. Arrangements for the dinner were made by Miss Boyer, chairman, the Misses Helen Lanzan, Ruby Rowe, Schultz and Siebelton. Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Jurgens. The program was closed with group singing of the sorority song.

INSTALL OFFICERS AT GUILD MEETING

Mrs. John Angle Installed President of the Guild of the First Presbyterian Church at Meeting Held on Thursday.

MRS. JOHN ANGLE was installed president of the Guild of the First Presbyterian church at a meeting Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. Other officers named to serve the club for the coming year were Mrs. H. H. Carter, vice president; Mrs. D. M. Given, secretary, and Mrs. O. I. Alverson. Women of First Congregational church were guests at the meeting. Rev. David N. Roller conducted the installation of officers.

Mrs. H. L. Lanehart, retiring president, conducted the business session. Plans were made to donate 25 dozen of eggs to the Volunteers of America for the annual Easter egg hunt which will be held in South park. Members of the Sunday school class of Miss Geneva Craig will color the eggs. Mrs. Lanehart announced that all of the five Circles had a balance after meeting their apportionments. Plans were discussed to use this fund for decorating the church parlors.

Miss Katherine Hartman spoke to the group on the importance of purchasing defense bonds and stamps. Mrs. W. R. King, Presbyterian president, announced that the Presbyterian will hold a meeting on April 14 and 15 in the Westminster church in Wooster. Luncheon will be served at 1:30 p. m. in the Knoll hall. Mrs. Ella Chase of Circle 3 led the devotions. Annual reports were given. Each circle chairman gave a review of the work done during the year by their group.

During the afternoon a reception was held for new members of the church who have joined since October 16. Red roses were presented to the following new members, Mrs. Roy Roller, Mrs. Al Dees, Mrs. Charles Myers, Mrs. C. E. Hoover, Mrs. Dean Dickerson, Mrs. Robert Cummins, Mrs. F. F. Elder and Mrs. Clifton Smith.

Following the installation Mrs. Angle presented a gift of a wardrobe case to Mrs. Lanehart, retiring president, who will leave the city soon to make her home in Washington, D. C., in behalf of the Guild. Mrs. P. F. Haley then invited members and guests to tea which was served from a long table attractively decorated with

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

All desire for laughter at the apparently ludicrous precautions which Gus had insisted I must take fled from me as I saw the lengths to which the driver of my father's armored car was going in order to insure that no hostile eyes should see us crossing Route 7.

Along that route the other armored car we had seen on the Merritt Parkway in all probability would pass it, as we suspected, its occupants were also trying to contact Professor Walter Scott Dismal, Jack Bickett's old college teacher.

It was a fantastic conjecture, I knew, but the men of our car, who were distinctly what Dicky would term "hard-boiled," evidently put enough credence in it to take elaborate precautions against the occupants of that other car catching sight of us again, and I felt myself thrilling tensely as the driver outlined his plan.

Driver Gives Orders.
"I'll stay right here with the engine running," he said. "Nobody on that other road will pay any attention to us. Now, as you go down that concrete road the way we're heading, there's a narrow road branches off to the left over a bridge and on along the other side of the river to the village of New Milford."

"Now, if one of you will walk fast down the road in that direction, and the other up the road in the other for five minutes, I'll wait that long, then if I hear whistles I'll stoop into the concrete road and across the bridge until I'm out of sight of the big road. There I'll stop and wait for you to come back. Look for me there."

"What about whistles?" Gus said, evidently a bit bewildered.

Agree on Signals.
"Why, at the end of five minutes, if you don't see any sign of that other car on the road—and keep your eyes on your watches—you blow your whistles. Gus, you blow two blasts, and you, Bill, blow three. I'll be listening for you, but you blow good and loud."

"Suppose the car comes along?" Bill asked.

"Then you make yourselves scarce," the driver said. "You'd better keep looking both ways as you walk, so if you lamp it you'll be able to melt quickly into the scenery until they've passed along. Then you start coming back."

"I'll be watching out for it from here, for I can see down on that road perfectly, and when they're safely out of sight I'll run this old bus over to the other road. Do you get the setup, both of you?"

"Sure thing," Bill said, and Gus sounded an unwavering "Okay!"

Then he turned to me.

"I'll have to have my whistle back for a few minutes," he said.

"It's louder than my other one."

Madge Not Afraid.

I handed over the whistle promptly. Gus made his way to the front of the car and, with Bill, left by the front door and walked briskly toward the concrete road.

"You're not nervous, are you, Mrs. Graham?" the driver said, without taking his eyes from the wide road at the junction just below him.

"Not a bit," I told him, and found to my own amazement that I was speaking only the truth.

When my father left me I had been panic-stricken, although I had concealed my feeling from him and from the men he had assigned to guard me. But the motor journey through the country had calmed my nerves. Getting away from the city always has a curiously soothing effect upon me.

And although I was tremendously thrilled and intrigued by the prospect of an adventurous turn to the trip, I found that I was not in the least alarmed, or even nervous about it.

Sight the Other Car.

"That's good," he answered. "And there's really nothing to this stunt. I don't expect to see that other car, but there's no use taking chances."

"I am sure my father would approve of the precautions you are taking," I said, and his answer was prompt and emphatic.

"I know he would," he answered, and then he added a low, excited expletive as he leaned out of the door.

"Judas Priest!" he said. "There's that armored car now."

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE IT A DOUBLE ONE

If there is no way to make your contract except by a squeeze play, you may proceed usually in either of three general ways. One is to try to squeeze your left-hand opponent, another is to try to squeeze the right-hand defender. But the better way is to try to discard so that you may hamstring either one of them, and possibly both. That goes, no matter how well you have read their cards at the start. Perhaps one of them has fooled you by something he did.

If South bids 2-Spades on this deal, then North 2-No Trumps, what should be South's next call, and why?

West laid down his club 4 and after getting a look at the K in dummy, switched to the diamond 10. From this South read him as holding the club Q, as otherwise he probably would have repeated the suit instead of risking a lead into a diamond tenace. With only eleven tricks in sight and no trumps, South decided to try a squeeze against both defenders, or against East if he alone held spades and diamond protection or against West if he alone could retain diamond and club protection of spade and diamond protection.

South just put in the diamond 10 in the remote hope that West had both the J and Q but East

Glossy Sheen of Rayon Hose May Now Be Dulled

PHILADELPHIA — (U.S.) — Research experts have finally conquered the glossy sheen that made rayon hose taboo for the well-dressed woman, according to William M. Leader, hosiery union president.

From the laboratories has emerged a yarn of attractive dull finish with improved sheerness, durability and elasticity which can be processed into a stocking to rival silk apparel, Leader, asserted. Summing up the situation, he declared:

"It looks now as if there will be available for hosiery this year some 20,000,000 pounds of rayon yarn; 8,000,000 pounds of nylon yarn, and between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 pounds of cotton yarn."

"About three-quarters of a pound of yarn is needed to make a dozen pairs of hose," said Leader. "If the yarn is divided equally, the industry can operate at about 75 per cent of the 1941 production—or 32,500,000 dozen pairs, against 40,000,000 last year."

AUSSIES SURPRISED AND PLEASED AT WAY YANKS GET THINGS DONE

(By United Press)
GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Five American army officers, badly in need of staff cars, walked into an automobile agency and saw 19 new cars on the floor. "Wrap 'em up, one of the officers said."

Within 20 minutes the 19 cars had been driven away by American soldiers and a dazed salesman was figuring out that he had earned $580 in commissions in five minutes.

That incident is typical of the way in which America's rapidly expanding armed forces here are cutting through red tape and delay. The Australians are dazed and surprised but they like it.

"You Americans really get things done," they said and they like to tell of incidents in which Yankee direct action and ingenuity is taking the short cut.

In one town the Americans needed a staff headquarters telephone quickly. They were told it would take two days. A signal corps linesman couldn't wait. He walked into a store telephone booth and jerked the pay telephone off the wall. Five minutes later he helped himself to copper wire and within 30 minutes the headquarters phone was in service.

GEN. JOHNSON: Congress Eyes Plans to Boost War Work

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON
WASHINGTON—This piece is about Donald Nelson's disagreement with Robert Guthrie and the latter's sudden resignation.

I doubt if more than a dozen people knew the following story before it was mentioned in a casual and incomplete fashion in this column as one good way to keep public confidence and stop a row in a war agency.

It happened in 1918. Two big shots in the war industries board had locked horns on a question of jurisdiction. One began to grumble, the other to sulk, and each to accuse the other of all kinds of rumored nonsense.

That poison was infectious and began to seep through the whole organization with other big shots taking sides and a good deal of wholly unnecessary threatened scandal.

Now, in spite of all that is said about strong administrators kicking the teeth out of their subordinates in error, you don't do that with big shots if it can be avoided.

There are two ways to avoid it. One is the method of the administration gently to kick one of them upstairs or send him somewhere to "observe" something—and then, in his absence, to liquidate his organization.

The other is the way it was done in the 1918 case. B. M. Baruch asked both of them out to his house and said:

"The country needs both of you love-birds and I need you."

He then invited them to a frank discussion of their differences and proved to them they were not important enough even to be mainly, but were being used to interfere with the whole effort.

"And so," he concluded "much as the country and I need you, and as little as I know about how to replace you, either this has got to stop right here or I'll have to let you both go. You are so nearly equally at fault that it would be an injustice to one to let him go and keep the other."

He left them until they came together to him and, with the shared faces of naughty boys, reentered the complete agreement. That was that, and there were no more such troubles in the war industries board.

Nelson's differences with Guthrie are almost a parallel case. The latter was Nelson's chief for both textiles and leather goods. After a somewhat stormy sub-earrangement and disagreement with other members, as nearly as I can get the facts (there are conflicting accounts), Nelson takes away one of Guthrie's offices without having it out with him.

Also, without attempting to reach an understanding, Guthrie publicly resigns and makes ruinous charges against dollar-a-year men in WPB. Whereupon Nelson obligingly fulminates and a great public controversy is born in the weakest spot in WPB.

Now, generally speaking of what little I know and the much I have learned of him over years, Nelson is not, by nature, a fulminator. He has been a rather gentle and very effective purchasing agent for a great mail order house.

But he is very receptive to suggestions from higher authority and the unofficial New Deal steering committee thought this job needed a tough guy.

So their official ghost writer produced speeches full of threats and imprecations—speeches of a kind Nelson is as incapable of composing as he would be of Thanatopsis—and he delivers them at frequent intervals.

If his three major speeches were intended as pep talks—they were so announced—Mickey Mouse could have done them to better effect.

My suggestions, offered at Nelson's invitation in his last speech, is to talk less with his mouth and more with his brain, and then to be himself in whatever he does.

NAZI SUB LANDS WOUNDED SAILOR AT MARTINIQUE

Americans Informed as U-Boat Surfaces, Sends Man Ashore on Rubber Raft.

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON—Responsible sources in Washington today disclosed that a Nazi submarine recently landed a wounded German sailor at Martinique, French island possession in the Caribbean.

The German U-boat surfaced off the island and sent the wounded man ashore in a collapsible rubber boat. After requesting the French authorities to care for the man, the crew of the boat returned to their submarine, which submerged and disappeared.

Following the U-boat's disappearance, the French authorities informed the official American observer stationed at Martinique of the incident.

The German sailor appears to have been wounded while his submarine was engaged in raiding shipping in the Caribbean sea. Whether the U-boat was struck by shellfire from an armed merchant ship while operating on the surface, or whether it was damaged by depth charges from American warships is not yet known in Washington.

As soon as this government learned of the incident, the French were notified that the United States objects to German submarines using Martinique waters for any purpose whatever.

The French, in reply, claimed that the German submarine's action in landing a wounded sailor was perfectly justified under international law as defined in the Geneva and Hague conventions.

This government reminded the French that France sent America a formal diplomatic note on Aug. 21, 1916, in which the French government took the position that German submarines should be excluded from the benefit of the rules of international law applying to the admission of belligerent ships into neutral ports.

The French note of that date protested against the fact that German submarines were entering American waters although the United States had not then entered the war.

The note urged neutral governments "to take effective measures with a view to preventing belligerent submarine vessels, whatever the purpose to which they are put, from making use of neutral waters, roadsteads and ports."

The American government now takes the position that it has a legitimate precedent for declaring that it will not tolerate German submarines making use of western hemisphere waters for any purpose whatever.

CONSIDERING 'PACE' WAGES AND AWARDS

Nelson Endorses Ideas To Give 'Worker Cross' and 'Incentive Pay.'

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Congress studied two new ideas today for boosting the arms output—a system of distinguished service awards for exceptional performance in war production, plus "incentive pay" for workers setting a fast pace in key munitions industries.

Donald M. Nelson, war production board chairman, endorsed both suggestions yesterday as he told a senate appropriations subcommittee that no special wartime labor legislation was needed, in fact, such "ill-advised" action might actually delay production.

Advancing his proposal for the assembly line Croix-de-Guerre, Nelson said:

"I feel that if the congress had an award for excellent work done for the service, just as there is for heroism in the field, it would be a fine thing on the part of congress to have an award to plants and to workers in the plants who did an outstanding job."

Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) of the senate subcommittee inquiring into war production, said both of Nelson's suggestions would be given proper attention.

Meanwhile William Green and Philip Murray, the AFL and CIO chiefs, were called for testimony at today's session. Thomas said representatives of business would be called.

On the house side, the naval committee passed a kindred inquiry, summoning Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal and other navy officials for their opinions on a bill to suspend maximum hour legislation and extra pay for overtime, limit war profits to six per cent, and prohibit closed shops in plants working on army or navy contracts.

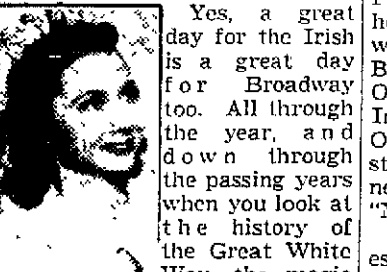

Senators Thomas, O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), Maybank (D-S.C.), Overton (D-La.), and Brooks (R. Ill.), expressed approval separately of Nelson's suggestion for some special banner, medal or other symbol of recognition to workers, plants, divisions, or factories that had rendered meritorious service in the production field.

Predicting that war workers who now number between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 soon would expand to 23,000,000 men and women, Nelson said he expected cooperation from both labor and management and was getting it. As to "incentive payments," Nelson said these might be an extension of the piece-work pay system with bonus for increased production to individuals or groups of workers. The war production chief said that much criticism had resulted from a failure to understand the huge task ahead.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Wearin' of the Green.
If there was a kind of a smile on the face of Broadway March 17th and a wink in its eye and an unusual amount of music in the air, you may as well know that the day of the year had something to do with it.

Yes, a great day for the Irish is a great day for Broadway too. All through the year, and down through the passing years when you look at the history of the Great White Way, the magic island of Manhattan has had much that is like the magical Emerald Isle. Perhaps the breeze in Times Square is nothing at all like the soft wind that comes over the green fields of County Mayo on a Spring evening, but the same sentimentality is deep rooted in both places alike. So is the love of music and gaiety and good friends. The quick tear. The ready laugh.

Sure, and more than a touch of blarney.

placed a rose on the grave of Abraham Lincoln." Irishmen all.

Broadway's box-office legend was "Abie's Irish Rose." Tin Pan Alley is rollicking to the tune of "Rose O'Day" and, in honor of St. Patrick, the photograph albums of homes all over the nation bulge with recordings of "Ireland Must Be Heaven," "Dear Little Town in Old County Down," "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Discs worn with use still preserve the nostalgic sweetness of Chauncey Olcott singing "Vaudeville."

When it was brightest, owed much to Ireland. Almost every joke in the heyday of the two-day was about Pat and Mike. Remember the Rooney's? The Foys? Will Mahoney, dancing on a xylophone? Gallagher and Shean? Remember how the strains of "Little Annie Rooney" always meant a soft-shoe dance was on its way? Remember how the entire nation, in love with a girl called Mabel Normand, sang and hummed and whistled, "Mickey, Pretty Mickey?"

Irish names, they were, and Irish songs they sang.

And look at the Irish now on Broadway and in Hollywood from Broadway. Hear their names—Morton Downey with his sweet silver voice and the blue eyes of a child, and Jim Tully with his red hair and home, beguiling face and gift of words, and Barry Fitzgerald with his beautiful, wry merriment. . . . George Murphy. Pat O'Brien. Jimmy Cagney. . . . Geraldine Fitzgerald. Maureen O'Hara. Maureen O'Sullivan. . . . Tyrone Power, named for a county in Ireland. . . . Brian Aherne, George Brent, John O'Hara, Steve Hannagan, Jack Spoorer, Jimmy Cannon, Sean O'Casey, James Farley.

Those are the Irish of Broadway and the suburbs of Broadway.

OHIO CANCELS '42 STATE FAIR

Bricker Turns Grounds Over to War Department; Local Exhibits To Continue.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS—The state's biggest agricultural show—the annual Ohio State fair—won't play its 1942 engagement, but farmers will have a chance to parade their prize stock at county and local exhibitions.

Gov. John W. Bricker cancelled the 92nd annual fair yesterday and turned the fairground over to the war department for the handling of airplane parts and equipment.

The Junior Ohio state fair has been one of the biggest features of the exposition. So to encourage competition among the youngsters Bricker said the state would do everything possible to induce the small farm shows to emphasize events for boys and girls.

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, in a formal request for the Ohio fairground, said the army could locate no other premises suitable for its needs.

The governor replied:

"In compliance with your request of March 17 we are calling off the Ohio state fair and will make available the fairground as you request. We had hoped to hold the fair this year as it always has been a great educational and recreational attraction for Ohio farmers and their children. "In view of the emergency, however, we want to do everything possible to aid the war effort. We await your further orders. If it should become apparent you are not going to use the fairground will you kindly advise us so we can renew plans for the fair."

John T. Brown, director of agriculture, said there was no possibility of holding the fair anywhere else.

YOU'LL NEED IDENTIFICATION CARD TO FISH IN LAKE ERIE

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND—You'll be fishing in troubled waters if you do not take an approved identification card with you into Lake Erie, the coast guard warns and reel fans.

The guard's wartime rule that anyone who operates a boat in any of the Great Lakes must have an identification card applies to off-shore fishermen, say the officers.

A person fishing from a boat in the lake must have a card, or accompany another person who has a card and will vouch for him. Cards are not required for shore-fishing in non-restricted areas.

Identification cards are not "passes" entitling the bearer to enter places on the lakefront at will. It appears that certain industrial areas will be barred completely.

Fishermen and yachtsmen are requested not to apply for cards until after the present rush of vessel seamen. Officials said they would announce soon when coast guard facilities will be ready to issue cards to fishermen and yachtsmen.

To obtain an identification card, an application blank is available at coast guard lifeboat stations, bases, or offices. The application requires two photographs 1 1/2 inches square and an endorsement by a public official, or head of an industrial concern.

Information needed includes social security number, citizenship status, military service, occupation and name of the applicant's employer. Fingerprints are taken also. For identification the applicant should carry a drivers license, draft registration card, or birth certificate.

THIRD VICTIM

Slayer of Parents Admits He Also Killed Grandmother.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Courtney Fred Rogers, 24, scholarly, bearded church organist who confessed two weeks ago that he murdered his mother and father, admitted to sheriff's investigators today that he also killed his grandmother six years ago.

Mrs. Sophie Siegelman, 75, his maternal grandmother, was killed Dec. 6, 1935, with a dose of arsenic, Rogers said.

He told authorities that her murder was the first step in his scheme to get her money for his musical education. The plan was carried to its conclusion in the murder of his father and mother.

Authorities had presumed the death of Rogers' parents were accidental and made only perfunctory investigations until the youth was arrested, months later, on a minor charge.

Says Man In Moon Could Smell This Potent Stench

CHICAGO—(INS)—A case in which political shulduggery is alleged to have reached its high point was due for a hearing today before Circuit Judge John F. Ryals.

The regular Republican organization charged that of the 5,783 names on the nominating petition of a candidate of a rival faction for probate judge every one was a forgery. Not only that, according to the regular organization, but signatures of all persons whose names appeared as those of circulators were forgeries.

Attorney John F. Tyrrell, counsel for the Republican County Central committee, said:

"The stench is so bad the man in the moon going over Chicago would have to hold his nose."

Nurses Aid Training Class In Action at Mansfield General Hospital

Volunteers in the first training class for Nurses Aid, one of the most important phases of local Civilian Defense, are now in the midst of an 80-hour training course that will equip them for hospital service in times of emergency. Twenty-three women from 21 to 50 years of age are devoting their evenings to taking the course at Mansfield General hospital where Miss Mabel Selfe, superintendent of nurses, is in charge of instruction. Once the 80-hours are completed the volunteers are pledged to give a year of hospital service a year for the duration of the war. The News-Journal camera caught the class in action as the various processes of bed-making, temperature-taking and attending a patient were shown. The four-some shown at the top left are learning how to take temperature. Pictured from left to right are Mrs. Paul Neidhart, Miss Betty Jones, Mrs. James Goff and Mrs. D. N. Feiser. At the top left, Miss Corrine Mowry, a class member, poses as the patient. Others shown left to right are Miss Virginia Baker of the hospital staff, Miss Calvin Myer, Mrs. Earl Muth, Mrs. J. W. Montgomery and Mrs. T. J. Newcomb. In the lower picture Mrs. Alfred Mercurio, left, and Mrs. Lyle Jones are practicing bed-making according to hospital rules.

WAITING WORD 'ICE IS OUT'

292 Freighters Have Vital Task Moving Ore For Forging Weapons.

(By United Press) CLEVELAND (AP)—Faced with the greatest hauling task in history, the Great Lakes ore fleet today awaited word that the "ice is out" to open on a full scale its 1942 shipping season.

Ahead of the 292 ugly, work-horse freighters lies a job as important as the one performed by Uncle Sam's sleek men of war.

For in approximately 260 days comprising the normal Great Lakes shipping season, those freighters are going to be feeding the maws of thousands of blast furnaces molding the weapons of war for the United Nations.

The government expects the fleet to carry more than 170,000,000 tons of iron ore, coal and limestone from the iron ranges, mines and pits of the upper lakes region to the docks of the lower lakes. It expects the fleet to move more than 614,000 tons daily.

It expects it to supply an area of roaring war production which embraces factories as far east as New York, as far west as Kansas City, and as far north as Duluth. The goals set for the fleet in 1942 are tremendous, but shipping officials in Cleveland were confident they could be met. Last year, for example, the ore carriers transported 80,000,000 tons of iron ore, a job which many shipping authorities had expected would be impossible.

The 1942 fleet has several factors in its favor.

Five new super-freighters are practically ready for service and they are expected to carry at least 500,000 tons.

With automobile production killed, the carriers used for auto transport last year are available for other tasks.

The Canadian government is expected to add a number of ships to augment the American fleet.

Congress has voted funds to construct an auxiliary lock at the Sault Ste. Marie canal.

Through this canal each year passes 85 per cent of the nation's iron ore supply—more tonnage than goes through the Suez canal and three times as much as the Panama canal. The new lock will mean even more tonnage—and more steel production from the nation's war plants.

Another factor aiding the fleet this year will be the extra 30 days deeper loading from May 15, allowed under an emergency ruling by loading authorities.

The honor of opening the shipping goes to an auto carrier leaving Cleveland harbor for Detroit. This year, symbolic of the war times, the season was launched by a coal shipment from Toledo to Detroit.

The tonnage this year, as in other years, depends on good weather and a minimum of accidents. But all shipping men—from big company officials down to the dock stevedores—say that the fleet is ready.

V-E-P Alloyed Oil

*Scientific tests show V-E-P will make the motor of your car last half again as long as it would with ordinary motor oil

ENTIRELY NEW!

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT!

SAVES WEAR

THREE TIMES THE RESISTANCE TO OIL FILM RUPTURE

caused by quick starts, high speeds, high pressures and motor-braking... so characteristic of today's high compression motors.

AVOIDS "FIRST-MINUTE" DAMAGE!

A "magnetic like" film of V-E-P clings to pistons and cylinder walls overnight. You get lubrication during the critical period it takes ordinary crankcase oil to get to vital parts.

PROTECTS BEARINGS AGAINST CORROSION

V-E-P provides positive protection against harmful acids in the engine formed by the products of combustion. Highly resistant to oxidation, formation of sludge, carbon, varnish and gum, thereby eliminating cause of valve and ring sticking.

SAVES GASOLINE

V-E-P's cleaning action frees valves and piston rings... gives a tighter seal... saves lost compression... turns gasoline into power instead of waste. A clean motor is a more efficient motor... a more economical motor.

SAVES OIL

By freeing valves, tight rings, unplugging the slots in oil rings, V-E-P prevents burning of excessive oil in combustion chamber... conserves it, instead.

RIDS YOUR MOTOR OF HARMFUL SLUDGE, CARBON, VARNISH

by dissolving the binder that holds these materials together. "Housecleans" motor... then keeps it clean.

Hits 703 For New ABC Lead

Chicago Kegler Takes Top Spot In Singles.

COLUMBUS—(U.S.)—The 42nd annual American Bowling Congress tournament entered its third week in the fairground Coliseum today following a 24-hour stretch which saw the leadership in all four divisions change hands at least once.

Climaxing the terrific barrage yesterday were new first placers in the singles, doubles, and all-events and a new second place outfit in the five-man bracket.

Little George Theel who helped the Budweiser Beers of Chicago take over the fire-man leadership Wednesday night with a 3131 count, fired a fiery 703 count on games of 268, 246 and 189 to grab the top spot in the singles. He was the seventh new leader in the singles in the 18-day-old event.

Theel had rolled 606 in the five-man and 563 in the doubles for an 1872 all-events total, good for fifth.

He was forced to share the spotlight with another trio of keggers who also assumed command of the other events.

Rolling on the same alleys as Theel, Joe Wilman, 1939 all-events champion, raced into the lead in this division behind a nine-game barrage of 656-558-683-1897 while his 683 in the singles was also good for fourth place. Both Theel and Wilman have been members of the "Buds" who blasted out the fifth highest total ever rolled in the classic, for the last seven years.

Meanwhile Harvey Braatz and Lou Strizzi of Cleveland had taken over command in the doubles with a terrific 1335 behind games of 396, 477 and 462 with Strizzi leading the attack with 678.

Another Cleveland, Al Stofcho accounted for the final changes of the afternoon when he hit for 673 for eighth place in the singles and 1850 for sixth place in the all-events despite a lowly 498 carryover from the five-man.

While none of these counts were expected to hold up under the murderous barrage, they'll finish far up in the money and indicate a possibility of record-breaking scores in all events.

In the five-man division, the Adams Funeral Home of Akron, O., proved its tag as one of the best tournament teams when it romped into second place with a 2956 series. In taking over the second slot, the Buckeye quintet polished off a 1049 game prior to its appearance on the ABC lanes last night, the Akron crew had established an average of 960 in the last three classics.

Also among the leaders are the Schultz Hudsons of Norwood, O., who clubbed the tenpins for 2879 and fourth spot, the Blade Cafe of Elmwood Place, O., which came up with a 2853 count for eighth place; and the Good Golf team of Albion, N. Y., which punched out 2805 for 10th.

A total of 12 changes were recorded Thursday, most of any day to date in the event.

Present records are: five-man—Birk Brothers, Chicago, 3284; doubles—Gil Zunker-Frank Benkov, Milwaukee, 1415; singles—Larry Shotwell, Covington, Ky., 774; and all-events—Max Stein, Bellevue, Ill., 2070.

Joe Wilman established an all-time four-year all-events record with his 1897 yesterday. He now has a total of 7613 pins in 36 games since winning the crown in 1939—which gives him an average of 211.7 per game. The former record was held by Joe Bodis of Cleveland who compiled 7588 pins for 210.28 in 1928-29-30-31.

A great crowd is expected to pack the Chicago stadium on the possibility that Warmerdam, the high flying Dutch school teacher from San Francisco's Olympic club, may better the pole vault record of 15 feet 7 1/2 inches he made recently at Boston, or that Rice may surpass his own indoor record of 8.5:1 for the two miles.

Rice, a Notre Dame alumnus now representing the New York A. C., set his record for the two miles at the Chicago relays a year ago. The fact that he likely will be pushed to the limit by Gil Dodds of the Boston A. C., and Ashland college (O.), heightened the prospect that a new record might be made in the event.

Chicago—(U.S.)—A galaxy of track stars, including the world record holders, Cornelius Warmerdam and Greg Rice, will bring the major indoor season to a close tonight in the Chicago Relays.
